

HOW MUCH DO LABOR SAVERS HELP WOMEN?

Even with the aid of electricity and other things some women seem to be as busy as ever, writes a woman. We knock down one set of idols—instance—a spotless white scrubbed floor—and set up in their place another lot—like—highly polished floors.

Many of us have oil stoves to help us to cook easily but the serving of more elaborate meals keeps us just as busy as we were when we had to keep the stove going with wood.

No sooner does some invention or canning come out to help us than we immediately decide we can easily manage to get a lot more jars filled.

We buy washing machines and electric irons and set up a much bigger

Of course none of us would willingly

ly go back to log cabins and open fire cookery but surely there is a happy medium. It is not right that women should condemn themselves to a life of slavery in the prisonhouse of home. They should have some time and energy left to go out doors, to be able to take walks with their children, to take a simple lunch and go over the hills and far away with their little band. The worst of picnics that are on a large scale is that they entail so much work and preparation for the mother that she is in a fit state for a rest in bed when it is time to set out. She must have some energy

Young women should realize that a fine home, beautiful clothes and elaborate meals are just taken as a matter of course the moment children or grown-ups get used to them. Don't imagine you are earning their undying gratitude by working your hands and brains to provide these material things. It's the greater mistake in the world to expect. They don't care a snap about it. For temper and general crankiness, however, they will accept no excuse. What does it profit a mother then if she brings children into the world but has no time or strength to enjoy the company—no spiritual companionship with them.

You know each soul is a lonely one. Not only the wife or mother or dear friend can touch the edge of the loneliness.

Each one of us has our own particular problems to face but I think it's a pretty safe rule for a mother if she sometimes sacrifices the material things. Let there be a time play and laughter and friendship a books Remember we only pass the way once Our children are soon and away Let us enjoy them while we have them and they on their side will always have a corner for us in their hearts

EASTERN REPORT

IS NOW ALTERED TO SOME EXTENT

What seems to be the matter with our esteemed contemporary Times Saturday Night? Many months that paper published a story that cast doubt upon the fact that Alberta Oilfield maintained at that time "prudent oil" Last week's edition of the same paper corrects this error — but not in any way to a satisfactory conclusion. In an article headed "Tanner's Oilfield a Proven Field Over a 'Lost Area'" Saturday Night says:

(or the writer) is now fully satisfied that there is a proven oilfield behind the reports by Dr. Hume showing to be the case. But Dr. Hume has made many other reports, and a search of those documents can be found evidence that the Wanwright oilfield (and was years ago) a proven oilfield of great value to the Dominion.

large. And yet the writer in Saturday Night only grudgingly admits that the Turner Valley has oil, with a single mention of the Wainwright and any other field or potential field. Truly the ways of the east are hard to understand—or, if perspicacity is terribly clouded!

Don't Tell The Wife

Copyright 1926 Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

by
WILLIAM B. COURTNEY

"DON'T TELL THE WIFE" starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros.

Never before in the history of international polo had so mighty a stroke been uncocked, nor indeed a goal achieved, with the first chucker, but a scant thirty seconds under way. Of course, there was no hoisterous cheering. One does not cheer within a radius of fifty feet of a polo player. It was a matter of mere minutes that the polo player, Meadow Brook One, ap- plauds. So hands that never touch dish water were smacked vigorously together and redoubled. Voices that had never taken on the brass of commerce cried: "Great shot, Forbes! Bullly work America! Youngsters and oldsters raised something of a clamor with auto horns. Many young girls squeaked a bit, and Stinner gladdened heartily. But only down in the paddock was there more enthusiasm than that. It was Ranny's handy, hand- leaved groom alternately turned back sprigs and cried to no one in particular. "Strike me pink! Strike me pink!"

It was the essential boyishness of his nature that made Ranny sulkily exult in his shot, not for what it had meant, but for its reaction upon the object of his jealousy and contempt. He managed a furtive glance back toward the sedan. It was not hard to conjure up a delightful picture of the chargin on Abner's dark face.

Into it again. There! Take it. Number 1. Ride him out. 2—ride him out. Ah a beautiful long diagonal pass and a shiffron Argentine back-stroking after it dribbling it along with short snappy strokes until he should come within range of the Tornados' goal. A clear shot ahead of him. Uncovered! After him. Ranny. After him! But Ranny had hesitated. Inalterably his thoughts with Joan and Abner in the instead of on the shimmering 300 by 150 yards expanse of playing field. Awake now and in pursuit! But too late. "Go to it, Judy!"

The game had mare stretched out at full tilt until her lean little belly almost scraped the ground between her flying feet. Man and mare a giddy conquest. Ranny flung up over her neck, jockeywise giving her free hand. There! The Argentine has placed the ball beautifully for a straightaway try at the goal, only eighty yards away. He spins at the almost, motionless sphere, all the confidence in the world in the free swing of his mallets. Mal- lard, the easy way in which he stands in his stirrups, for a toe-hold and throws his weight over to his hitting side. Swift!

But wait! Judy has rushed her snorting nostrils into the picture. Ranny's mallet flashes overhead in a cross-back stroke and meets the ball simultaneously with the Argentine's forward smash. The ball is "knocked off" at a tangent. The Tornados' goal remains virgin.

Ranny veered Judy sharply expert by so as to avoid the fullest brunt of collision with the Argentine then threw her back on her haunches pivoting her in one of those miracu- lously short turns that only a thorough bred pony whose heart is in the game can make. Now the other six men thundered down, and the ball was knocked on its erratic way.

Ranny and Judy both breathing hard, the little mare quivering and snorting in the awful excitement of the reckless play. After the field. Always there was a vision of a laugh- ing face before Ranny's eyes, a taunt- ing grin whose erasure by prowess was demanded by pride. Always it was Ranny and Judy who aborted Argentina tries who broke up rallies in front of the Tornados' posts. A bell rang. The seven and a half minutes of the first eight chukkers were up; three minutes to change ponies. There would be seven be- tween the fourth and fifth chukkers time for a bite of respite then. But now, just enough to dash down to the paddock; off the weary, onto the fresh.

Ranny took out Firebug for the second chucker. Milkmaid would be ready for the third. Then Judy again. July the favorite. Meadow Brook One seized advantage of the chance for an abbreviated chat with Ranny talking even while the perspiring star was changing from Judy to Firebug. "Good work Forbes. The greatest single stroke I've ever seen and I've watched polo twenty years and in twenty countries. A man who can swing a mallet like you ought to be in the lumber business."

"If that proposition we've been discussing goes through I guess I'll be in the lumber business, said Ranny as he hurriedly as humorously. Stinner chuckled cordially. "The satisfaction of winning my wager—and the greater of seeing your wonderful pony will for America—won't make me illly disposed toward you now will it?"

The lumber king whose social and business power made him undeniably a personage of immense distinction was obviously as boyishly proud of his privilege in talking to the polo star player as a sand lot kid would be in talking to Babe Ruth. "Seriously went on Stinner, 'you and I have much in common Forbes I hope we'll see a lot of each other hereafter. For the present I'm going to look up Grat man and see if he'd like to double the bet."

"You'll find him in my car talking to my wife," said Ranny, so bitterly that Stinner arched his brows.

Ranny burned up the grass with Firebug, getting to midfield. It's Ranny's day," gloated the crowd. (The backdrift of this talk reached the Forbes' sedan.

You look quite proud of him pointed Abner.

"If Ranny were half as attentive a husband as I am a poloist he could make any woman happy," Joan said quite femininely—and a bit wistfully. Abner frowned. It would not do to have Ranny become again a hero in his wife's eyes. Then there was that! Abner slipped out of the car and threatened his way down the rear of the sidelines towards the paddock. For Ranny's use in the next chucker. As he sneaked along he fingered a pocketknife thoughtfully, through sharp enough to cut, smooth strap leather!

The echoes of the timing bell signaling the second chucker pinned the rapid attention of every person to the field. Every person, that is, saying one. Abner Gratman, sinking along with jealous rage gnawing at the heart reached the paddock without having caused undue attention. He totally escaped Stinner who had gone in search of him up the less inconspicuous front row.

Abner found Ranny's convex-legged bantam cock groom detailing an assistant to hold the bride of Milkmaid who was "ride" and ready order a blanket while he walked stream- ing Judy off to rub her off a bit and blanket her and rest her for the fourth chucker.

There was luck. The assistant would be easier to fool. Abner ranged him- self alongside the lad in an ingrati- latingly demotic way.

"Warm playing, eh?" "I'll tell the cross-eyed world!" Abner sniffed in covert disgust at this yokel bombast, but he took ad- vantage of the absorbed interest it represented. The boy, disarmed by Abner's friendliness and entranced by the furious whirl of the game he adored was innocently unaware of what the society man beside him was doing. Nonchalantly resting against the side of Milkmaid one arm flung over the saddle so as to hide his body and his actions from the idle or casual glances of any of the nearby hostlers. Abner worked persistently and carefully with his other arm un- der Milkmaid's blanket, sawing the blade of his knife across the stirrup strap until but a flimsy film of leather held the stirrup. The first severe strain—and—bloody!

"Look! Mr. Forbes ride'em off from the goal girl! Look! that swivel!" exclaimed the boy. "Go! he sure kept'em from scorin' that time!" But Abner having completed his nefarious design walked off now ignor- ing the boy as he would a worm and the crestfallen lad wondered in pain! (Continued at the social inconsisten- cies of the elite.

Bob Ward shyly took hold of her hands. "Sally Smith," he said eagerly, "tomorrow night I have no classes. Let's go for a ride on the Fifth Avenue buses, or something! The movies downtown—anything you say?"

Sally's eyes shone like awfully happy stars, freshly spawned from the bourns of Eternity. "The bus!" she laughed. "I like that better. We can sit on the back seat and—"

"You just leave the 'and' to me, Sally Smith!" chuckled Bob, and then he turned and sprinted like a three-year-old toward the Subway station. He had to do that to keep from being seized by Sally and kissing her.

And Sally, who knew full well what impulse had made him run—when he hadn't—

The rest of that week passed gloriously, what with the Bus ride picture on Wednesday, and the care- free ride home in the pleasant security of each early June evening. They sang, always, when the four of them were together; and in the privacy of his alone, of seeing Sally sitting on the door step of the Smith house. This, despite Mrs. Smith's attempts to discourage it—by sudden and hostile appearances, and frosty re- marks.

Mrs. Hammond, meantime, con- tinued to play her hand of patience, continued to play her hand of patience, continued to play her hand of patience. Then, if ever, she would test and try Bob's virtue!

CHAPTER XII
Saturday afternoon came. Bob thought of it as the day when he was to receive a sorely needed fifty dollars in salary; a tremen- dous lift toward the expenses of Commencement Day, less than three weeks off.

Sally thought of it as the day be- fore the Sabbath day of rest, on which Bob had already made a date to meet her, directly after she re- turned home from church; they were to go away to Manhattan Beach for an early season swim.

Mrs. Hammond thought of it as the day of troubled peace. She was in a seemingly serious mood as she met Bob and began to dance with him that afternoon. She carefully avoided any display of personal charm, or physical attrac- tion. She was his friend; his ear- nest, sisterly friend.

had been a little afraid of her. That fear had worn off, and he had come to know her. Of course, the more he knew her, the more he liked her. He was a little afraid of her. That fear had worn off, and he had come to know her. Of course, the more he knew her, the more he liked her.

After all, Mrs. Hammond was a dumb-bell. Why take her word against Mrs. Hammond's character. And Freddy and Arch were just re- sponsible, and inclined to ro- mantic. That's it: the reputed love- liness on Park Avenue was just a sign of foolish, or mongering, minds.

"I wish I knew," he said earnest- ly. "Thinking about it gives me a headache. Of course, the more I'm making here is going to help a lot. But a fellow needs a little more than just enough to pay his board bills. Of course, I can get any kind of a job for the summer, but I am the sort who hates to waste time. I want to get right into my chosen field. Gosh, I hope I graduate with honors."

Industrial corporations are always watching to give jobs to fellows who win honors in the engineering course.

"Bob," he said to see your first chances ruined by the grind of poverty. I know so many impor- tant men, so many engineers, that I am sure I shall be able to do some- thing very quickly, after you graduate. But, meanwhile, we must try to think up some way to make money. I want to get right into my chosen field. Gosh, I hope I graduate with honors."

"I'll try to think up some way that's all I do!" "Yes, but you're just a sweet boy, Bob, and you haven't had any expe- rience in such matters of the world. You need counsel, said For- instance, one of the most important things of all is for you to make a good impression when you intro- duce men, after you graduate, for a position. A good personal appear- ance, I mean, when you know."

"Yes, I know!" said Bob, with just a trace of bitterness. He was thinking of the hundreds of dollars he had had to give to the charitable help of relatives, blasting his own plans.

"Well, I'll try to think of a way to help. You won't mind if I'm so interested in you, will you, Bob? Of course, if you do—"

"Indeed I won't. I think it's mighty nice of you."

Her offer had come so spontane- ously, so utterly devoid of passion or anything more than a purely platonic and friendly interest, that Bob was disarmed on the moment. Besides, his needs were so desper- ate that he could not afford to in- stantly set his face against any sort of aid. In fact, that he had to be- lieve as Mrs. Hammond's. It was all very well for Freddy and Arch, they had a good bit of money, they had a good bit of money, they had a good bit of money.

"I'm glad you feel that way, Bob, really I like you. Because I like you, and have nothing but the friend- liest motives. Maybe it seems a bit strange to you that a woman like me should be so interested in help- ing you. And perhaps these people here have been repeating all sorts of idiotic and idle gossip to you about me. But I tell you, Bob, there is no truth in anything any- one has said to you about me. They know nothing about me, you see, and it irks their spite. People, es- pecially women, of a certain class, are that way."

NOTED WRITER'S LAST WORDS

John Markey one of the best known newspapermen in Eastern Canada, and for more than a score of years editor of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, whose death is reported in the current issue of Canadian Printer and Publisher, maintained the highest standards of journalistic excellence in the columns of the paper he edited. The ruling passion was strong in him even in death and when things of time and sense were slipping away and his eyes looked wistfully out over the rim of eternity he sent from his death-bed his last editorial to his paper as a final message to his readers. In it he says:

"My surroundings and circumstances are entirely new and unusual. I am lying on a strange cot in a strange room, surrounded by people whom a week ago, I did not know. So likewise are the thoughts that come crowding into my mind and the theme that forces itself upon me for this my last editorial. Hitherto my thoughts have been of time and timely interests. My themes have been policies—Civic, Provincial and Federal. Now, as I lie facing eternity, all these thoughts have passed away, and their place is taken by an all-absorbing one—'What's the use of these things for eternity?' and the theme that forces itself upon me now is: 'In view of eternity, what policy should one follow?'"

If in the past, by my editorials I have brought you any good or in any small way added to your happiness kindly readers and friends, now I pray God, whom I am about to meet that this my last message may do you much good and help you to a happy death and a happier eternity.

"What is the use of it all, in view of eternity?" queries the Toronto Globe. "The question that is asked by the late Mr. Markey has been asked by multitudes throughout the ages when they have looked back at the work they have done as life nears its close. Too often the only reply they have given to their question has been in the words of the despairing conclusion of the Preacher of a far-off day: 'Vanity of vanities, all is vanity.' Who is able to answer the question?"

"In view of eternity, what policy should one follow? The only answer is: the policy one would wish to have followed as one views eternity. Men and women need to take long views of life, death and the great hereafter. It is a salutary thing to look at life sometimes as it would appear from one's death-bed, and measure time with the perspective glass of eternity. It enables one to see life steadily and see it whole, and to evaluate in their true importance the things that are done under the sun." —Printer and Publisher.

THE ETERNAL THREE SUBJECT OF FEATURE

The eternal three, one of the ever present situations in life, has been given a novel treatment, "Homestruck" an FBO production starring Viola Dana which is showing tonight and Thursdays at the Theatre. This time it is a girl and two men; one shares her theatrical profession and dreams of the day when she will be a star, while the other man wants to take her far away from her old life to a house, where she will settle down to domestic bliss. However, the actress has a decided preference, both for the men and for her future occupation, and after she has made her choice, the 'other man' is left to reconcile himself to his fate. The events from then on are a great surprise and the refreshing angle introduced in the story is a tremendously human and understandable one.

medium $5.50 to $5.75; common $4.00 to $4.50.
Choice heifers $5.00 to $5.50; good $4.50 to $5.00;

common $2.00 to $2.50. Choice light calves $7.00 to $7.50;
common $3.00 to $3.50. Feeders—Stockers—Feeder steers brought from $4.00 to $4.50;
stock steers $3.50 to $4.00; stock heifers $3.00 to $3.50; stock cows $2.50 to $3.00.

HOGS

Edmonton quotations for thick smooths are $10.25 with select, at $10.75.

SHEEP

Edmonton market shows no change with lambs at $10.00, and ewes $9.00.

GRAIN

Some districts report harvesting will in all probability be under way in about another two or three weeks.
Crop is reported as looking splendid due to recent spell of warm weather.

BUTTERFAT—BUTTER

BUTTERFAT—No change has been made in quotations. Considerable being put in storage, while there is also large trade being carried on by firms with direct connections at the coast.
No change in prices reported. Dairy Butter—Very little in this line being handled. Prices show no change from last week.

POULTRY—Poultry continues to be chief commodity of trade, as farmers are turning them off now that they have quit laying. EGGS—Receipts continue on light side, while good demand is clearing up the offerings readily. Prices are holding steady. Market displaying firm tone throughout.

POTATOES

Receipts from local sources have been light again this week, but this is due to the maturing—having been hindered through so much wet weather, but present warm weather should bring them along rapidly. Alberta spuds bringing from $1.50 to $1.75 per 100 lbs delivered.

FURS

Western dealers are awaiting for sale at Winnipeg in couple of week's time, which is a four-day auction with over a million dollars worth of goods to come under the hammer. Montreal sale follows next month. Local trade at standstill.

Here and There

Canada's net debt was reduced by $42,000,000 during the past fiscal year, a reduction in the national debt larger than any in its history.

"The Royal York" is the name chosen by President Beatty for the new Canadian Pacific hotel to be erected at Toronto. It associates the new hotel with the early history of that city.

Canadian Pacific Railway engineers, now busy with their preliminary survey of the projected railway to Chicoutimi and the Lake St. John district, are at present studying the question of a terminus site.

An aviation field available to commercial flying is to be prepared at Lethbridge, Alberta. The new field, which will be wide enough to allow ten planes to lie abreast, will also be used for aerial mail service.

A large party of professional men will leave for a tour of the west over Canadian Pacific lines, on the third annual tour conducted under the auspices of the University of Montreal. The party will spend about two weeks in the Rockies.

The second regular journey to Canada of the Canadian Pacific steamship "Empress of Australia," will be distinguished by the presence on board of that ship of the Prince of Wales and Premier Stanley Baldwin, of Great Britain.

Col. J. S. Dennis, chief commissioner of the Department of Colonization and Development, Canadian Pacific Railway, predicts a much larger immigration movement to Canada this season, according to D.
C. Coleman, vice-president in charge of construction, he said, is progressing rapidly and every effort is being made to have the new lines in operation by the time the fall crop movement begins. Keeping pace with the rising tide of land settlement the company expects to open the line from Lloydminster to Clan Donald on July 15. This branch is of particular interest as it serves the colony of Hebrideans located in the Clan Donald district. These settlers are doing remarkably well and have forty per cent. of their land broken.

Why Gum-Dipped Mileage Costs Less "Per Mile"

The demand from car owners for Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires has given Firestone Dealers a large increase in volume that enables them to sell these tires to you at the lowest prices in the history of the industry.

The Firestone Balloon Tread, scientifically designed three years ago, and unchanged today has the wear resisting qualities that give thousands of extra miles.

This tread must be placed on a carcass that has the qualifications to withstand terrific flexing. The Firestone carcass is made of cords dipped in rubber solution which not only saturates and insulates every fibre of every cord, but unifies sidewalls with carcass, eliminating any possibility of separation under the extreme flexing of low-pressure.

The Firestone Dealer in your locality will gladly explain
the Gum-Dipping process, the scientifically designed tire tread, and other advantages that only Gum-Dipped tires can give. See him today.

WHEN USING WILSON'S FLY PADS

There is only one way to kill
all the Flies

This is it—Darken the room as much as possible; close the windows, raise one of the blinds where the sun shines in, about eight inches; place as many Wilson's Fly Pads as possible on plates (properly wetted with water but not flooded) on the window ledge where the light is strong; leave the room closed for two or three hours, then sweep up the flies and burn them.
See illustration below.

Put the plates away out of the reach of children until required in another room.

The Low-Swung Body with no loss of headroom or road clearance

THE dream of every automobile manufacturer—to build a body low swung for beauty and for roadability, without loss of head-room or road-clearance—has become reality in McLaughlin-Buick for 1928.

McLaughlin-Buick engineers achieved this lower effect, not by the makeshift of smaller wheels with their increased tire wear, but by a complete re-designing of bodies, and by an entirely new and exclusive principle, the double-drop frame. The tallest McLaughlin-Buick now stands but 70 inches high, yet McLaughlin bodies are roomier than ever before.

See the low-swung body as McLaughlin-Buick builds it, and you will see at once why McLaughlin-Buick is the industry's accepted leader in beauty, luxury, performance—and especially in value.

LINGERIE HINTS!

Ladies. Do you know how to wash silk knit Lingerie? Luke warm water, suds with Lux, never rub silk; sponge and squeeze dirt out. Never hang outside for the wind to blow them, never use a peg in them. Hang over a clothes horse or chair.

When wanting to shorten a slip do not use machine as the needle of the machine splits threads which when washed will show up in holes every place machine has been used.

If these hints are carefully enforced you will find a difference in the wearing of your silk
